

Atlas Medical Clinic Email Communication Policies

Email Communication Consent and Risks:

By choosing to communicate with Atlas Medical Clinic via email, you acknowledge and accept the following terms:

Privacy Risks: Email communication is not a secure method of transmission. There is a risk that emails can be intercepted, accessed, or disclosed without the consent of the parties involved.

Confidentiality: We strive to maintain the confidentiality and security of all patient information. However, when communicating via email, please be aware that confidentiality cannot be guaranteed.

Appropriate Use: Email should not be used for urgent or sensitive matters. In case of an emergency, please contact us directly by phone or seek immediate medical attention.

Patient Responsibility: You are responsible for ensuring the security of your email account and for contacting us immediately if your email address changes.

Clinic's Discretion: Our clinic reserves the right to save your email communications in your patient file and may use email to communicate with you for matters related to your care, including but not limited to appointment reminders, test results, and follow-up instructions.

Opt-Out: If you prefer not to communicate via email, please contact us directly so we may update your preference for alternative methods of communication.

Consent to Email Communication:

By continuing to communicate with Atlas Medical Clinic via email, you are indicating your agreement to the terms outlined above and consent to the use of email as a means of communication, understanding the associated risks.
